

You can search for more articles at <http://leedsmercury.mirfield-2ndlook.info>

ALHOUSE OFFENCE.—On Monday last, at the Dewsbury Court-house, George Doughty, the landlord of the Railway Hotel, Mirfield, appeared before John Hague and Frank Wormald, Esqs., to answer a charge of permitting gambling in his house. It appears that on Saturday evening, the 2nd of February, Mr. Haworth, the Mirfield constable, called at defendant's house, and in one of the rooms found a number of men playing at "roulette," and from seven to eight shillings on the table. One of the men playing, on Mr. Haworth's appearance, said, "Well, you have taken us fair this time." Defendant was fined £1 and costs.

You can search for more articles at <http://leedsmercury.mirfield-2ndlook.info>