

On Wednesday morning a Mirfield tradesman named Whitaker left his home, and as he did not return in a reasonable time, search was made, and in the afternoon his body was found in the canal running through the parish. It is supposed he was of unsound mind at the time he fell into the canal. Deceased, who leaves a widow and six children, was a man of very temperate habits.