

A DEWSBURY COLLIERY ACCIDENT.—Yesterday afternoon Joseph Netherwood, coal miner, employed at the Ravenswharf Colliery of Messrs. G. and J. Haigh, was killed by falling down the pumping-shaft. He was being drawn up, seated on a cross-rod, having been effecting an alteration in the apparatus, and it is believed he became giddy, for he fell off and dropped into the water at the bottom. When reached the poor fellow was quite dead. Deceased, who was married, lived at Green-side, Mirfield.
